

FUNERAL OF
SHERIFF J. HAY FANT

The burial service for Sheriff J. Hay Fant was held Saturday afternoon in Rosemont cemetery, and there his body was laid to rest. A vast concourse of people gathered to pay tribute to the dead officer and friend. Not in the history of Union has there been such a demonstration, and never before such a profusion of beautiful flowers. The services at the grave were simple and brief. Rev. —, Corburn, pastor of Bethel Methodist church, read the scripture. Rev. Edward S. Reeves offered prayer, a selected choir sang. Then followed a prayer by Rev. L. P. McGee, then another hymn by the choir. A brief tribute by Rev. Lewis M. Rice was as follows:

"Friends and Brethren:

"We are met here under the open vault of heaven to pay a last tribute to the memory of J. Hay Fant and to drop a tear upon his bier. Mere words are inadequate to express our emotions; indeed, they are not necessary, for the profusion of lovely garlands of flowers, and this immense throng gathered about his open grave, attest the high esteem in which he was held. "We come to bury all that is mortal of the man who held the highest position of trust in the gift of the people of Union county. Three times you elected him to that position of high trust. That he did not betray the trust is proven by your presence here today.

"A faithful man has met his untimely end. He was kind to friend and merciful, even in the execution of the law; indeed, it was his merciful attitude towards his prisoner that incidentally caused his death. He could have shot, and shot to kill. He had that right. But he did not, for he was attempting to spare the resisting prisoner's life; that led him to strike the hand of the prisoner with the butt of his gun, and thus was discharged the fatal shot.

"Great crime waves are rolling over our land and the lands beyond the sea; strong men tremble and brave ones falter in the face of the tidal wave of crime world-wide, appalling. But I think you will bear me out in the statement that Union county has been singularly free from the more pronounced crimes; and the reason is to be attributed largely to the fact that you had a good sheriff. Men, women and children felt safer because they knew that J. Hay Fant, sheriff, travelled up and down the roads of Union county, day or night, no matter what the weather conditions.

"We do not, as a people, appreciate the obligation we owe to these faithful representatives of the law. The small money consideration paid them is not sufficient to settle the debt. We should renew our vows to obey the law; we should give encouragement and all moral support to them, for the law in our protector both in the possession of our property and in the preservation of our lives. The law functions properly only when your officer is faithful and you are considerate and sympathetic.

"Around this open grave let us rededicate ourselves to the cause of good citizenship. Let us swear to Almighty God that we will obey the law and enforce obedience to it upon the part of others.

"When J. Hay Fant met his mortal wound he died for you; he died for me. He died for us as truly as ever sacrifice was made in any just cause.

"J. Hay Fant was brave. He did not know what fear was. He was a generous friend, a loyal husband and a loving father. His untimely death has dimmed many eyes with tears, and all feel a personal loss.

"When J. Hay Fant received a call, his response was prompt and thorough. By his faithfulness and the determination that characterized him the lawless were restrained and criminals brought to justice. One notable example: Several years ago a crime, hideous, revolting, was committed a few miles above Jonesville. The roads were axle deep in mud, the weather stormy and it was night. Word was phoned to Sheriff Fant. His record trip to the scene of the murder that night, in spite of obstacles, resulted in the arrest and conviction of the guilty man. This is but one of many such cases. When Sheriff Fant was called he went himself; he did not send his deputy.

"To die is not so bad, if one be prepared to meet his God. J. Hay Fant testified that he was ready, and our hearts gladly cherish the hope. But the anguish wrought in the hearts left bleeding and torn—that is the part so hard to bear. These dear ones gathered here feel deep and bitter pain; only time and God's mercy can soften the bitter pangs.

"J. Hay Fant has passed into the great beyond. Let us turn from his grave to take up the duties of life. It is God's will, it is God's way, and the peace of God abide in our hearts!"

Another hymn and then Rev. Jno. F. Matheson, in the following words,

UNION SERVICE
AT GRACE CHURCH

Rev. L. P. McGee preached his farewell sermon at Grace Methodist church last evening and the congregations of the Presbyterian and Baptist churches united with the Grace congregation in bidding him farewell and wishing for him many years of useful service and happiness.

Addresses were made by Rev. J. F. Matheson of the Presbyterian church and Dr. E. S. Reeves, of the Baptist church expressing the love and esteem in which they held Rev. Mr. McGee and the high esteem in which he is held by the community. Two years ago he came to Grace church and quickly made a place for himself in the hearts of the people and deep regret is felt on all sides that he is to go to another field.

The retiring pastor responded to these words of farewell and his remarks were most appropriate and tender.

A beautiful feature of the service was the presentation of an elegant gold watch and chain to Rev. Mr. McGee with the inscription:

"Rev. L. P. McGee from the membership of Grace M. E. Church, South, Union, S. C., 1921."

The presentation was made by Hon. T. C. Duncan in a few well chosen words, and the services were interspersed with special music by the choir.

Rev. and Mrs. McGee will leave Thursday for Anderson, where Mr. McGee takes up his work at St. John's church.

Eastern Star to

Notice

Notice is hereby given that a meeting in the interest of the Union County Cotton Association cooperative marketing plan will be held in the court house Wednesday, Nov. 16, at 11 a. m. R. C. Hamer, state president, will be present and will deliver an address outlining the plan of the cooperative marketing association. Every farmer in the county, particularly those who grow cotton, should attend this meeting. It is of vital importance.

W. D. Woods,
County Agent.

Mrs. Harry Payne (Clarice Tinsley) and little son left on the noon train today for Columbia to spend sometime with friends.

paid a tribute to the dead man:

"Yesterday in Washington, the capital of the nation, there was laid to rest, until the trumpet call of the re-embodiment of the judgment day, the unknown soldier.

"It was fitting that our own and other nations should join in honor to this hero, silent in death. He sleeps the last long sleep, in beautiful Arlington, in the lands that have come down to us from George Washington and Robert E. Lee.

"There, in a wonderful structure built by human hands, what more fitting place for the gallant dead of our country than in this former home of Washington and Lee, our greatest soldiers.

"But today, we are present at a scene more striking still to us. For we are laying away to his long sleep, in the earth for his sepulchre, with the blue vault of heaven, work of God, for his canopy, the soldier known.

"We read in the Bible that a king of the ancient times would take the tallest, strongest of his men to be his bodyguard; and here, the Heavenly Father has reached down and has taken one of His tall, strong sons to be in the bodyguard of the King of Glory.

"Take comfort, you, the inner circle of those who loved him, take comfort from this day.

"In a ministry of 26 years, I have never before seen a funeral like this. Once, in another part of the county, at the funeral of a very popular man, Sheriff Fant said that if he could have as many people come to his funeral he would not mind dying. This vast gathering today is the response of our hearts to his wish.

"Sleep on, beloved, sleep and take thy rest:

Thy precious head upon thy Savior's breast,
We loved thee well—but Jesus loves thee best,
Good night. Good night. Good night."

The benediction was pronounced in unison by the ministers present.

The grave was literally banked under the flowers sent by sympathizing friends.

HUGHES' PROPOSAL
STIRS DELEGATION

Washington, Nov. 13.—Delegates to the arms conference had not discovered the arms conference had not discovered day from the shock of Secretary Hughes' blunt presentation yesterday of the proposal for immediate reduction of the fleets of Great Britain, the United States and Japan, and for a ten year naval holiday.

The concrete terms of the American plan, laid before the opening session of the conference on limitation of armaments, were still in the hands of the naval experts of the other two powers chiefly concerned.

Pending their conclusions, no further step is probable. The spokesmen here for Great Britain and Japan have nothing to add to their previous guarded comments on Mr. Hughes' suggestions. As far as they went, these statements were encouraging and it was certain at least that no possibility of flat rejection of the plan existed. Without doubt it will form the basis for reaching whatever conclusions the conference brings forth.

With further time for study by interested officials of all nations, the American plan began to stand out today in its true proportions. Apparently it is far more than a ten year naval holiday that is projected, coupled with immediate heavy reduction of the fleets of the three powers. Beyond that is a third, equally blunt and direct suggestion for continuing agreement, to limit the size of battle fleets permanently. That is what Mr. Hughes' naval replacement plan really amounts to.

In naming the ships to which each main battle fleet would be cut if the American plan for immediate reduction was accepted, Secretary Hughes' statement shows that Great Britain and the United States would be on an exact equality in the number of battleships, but the British would retain in addition four battle cruisers. The proposed Japanese fleet would be composed of six battleships and four battle cruisers, while the United States would be content with battleships alone.

This may prove significant as the discussion proceeds, some naval officers believe. It appears probable that in proposing to agree that both of the island powers should be provided in equal numbers with those newest additions to the main fleets of nations while the United States made no attempt for 10 years at least to equip the American fleet similarly, the American delegation to the arms conference sought to convey a very definite assurance that America, as President Harding told conferees, came to the discussion with no selfish purpose to serve.

Relinquishment by the United States of any battle cruiser element in her fleet, some officers said, at once indicated clearly that the navy was not maintained with the deliberate idea that it might some day think advisable to raid the sea commerce of the two insular powers or either of them. Battle cruisers would be invaluable; perhaps vital to successful prosecution of a naval war across the Pacific, it was said.

Hope to Agree on Tentative Program

Washington, Nov. 14.—The heads of the delegations to the armament conference hoped to agree on a tentative program of procedure before the second general session tomorrow. Heads of the American, British, French, Italian and Japanese delegations met to discuss the armament negotiations program followed by a meeting of the heads of all nine delegations to consider the procedure for the far Eastern questions. The delegates continued to study Secretary Hughes' proposal for the immediate reduction of fleets and a ten year naval holiday.

It was assumed that several days will be required for the naval advisers of Great Britain and Japan to prepare the estimates of acceptability of the American proposal of thousands of messages of praise and approval received by Hughes and the White House. Publicity for the conference is among the questions considered by the heads of the delegations at the meetings. The American position as was understood is for an open meeting in principle with the frequent executive sessions. The conclusions of which will be presented in open sessions.

STATES CAN GET ROAD MONEY

By Hugh W. Roberts.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Twenty-five million dollars is immediately available for the continuation of good roads projects in the several states of the union. January 1, the remaining $50,000,000 of the $75,000,000 appropriation carried in the bill recently signed by the president will be available.

This money will be prorated among the several states of the union, but must be matched, dollar for dollar, by the state appropriation. Texas, because of its extensive territory, will receive a larger share than any other state, $4,425,172.41. New York follows with $3,696,447.97. Then comes Pennsylvania with $3,398,953.97, and Ohio with $2,823,004.05.

The majority of the states receive between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000, examples following: Alabama $1,553,420.67; Georgia, $1,997,957.58; Mississippi, $1,294,906.22; North Carolina, $1,709,333.90; South Carolina, $1,061,237.35; Florida, $886,825.69.

The new funds are received just in time, as projects in several states were about to be abandoned for lack of appropriations. Since 1916 Republican Byrnes of South Carolina, Lee of Georgia, Shackelford of Missouri and other members of the house conferred and introduced a bill, which was supplanted by the Senator Bankhead bill in the senate, the government has appropriated $275,000,000 as federal aid to roads. Of that amount, $199,823,427 has been put to work in projects which are completed or in course of completion. To match that amount, the states have appropriated $265,529,090 for a total of $465,352,517.

The roads to be paid for by this money would encircle the earth and extend from San Francisco to New York on the second lap, the total mileage under construction and completed being 27,000. Of this mileage 9,555 in projects completed. The balance of 17,445 is in projects still under construction but which are 69 per cent completed. The average cost per mile of federal aid roads has been between $17,000 and $18,000.

DEATH CLAIMS
MRS. GEO. GOULD

Lakewood, N. J., Nov. 13.—Mrs. George Jay Gould, wife of the capitalist, dropped dead today while playing golf with her husband on the private links at Georgian Court, their country home.

She had just finished a drive at the fifth tee and with her husband was watching the flight of the ball when she collapsed without a word. Mr. Gould turned to speak to her and was astonished to see her lying across the tee. Thinking his wife merely had stumbled, Mr. Gould hastened to assist her to her feet, but when she failed to speak to him, he sent the caddy on a hurry call for physicians.

Drs. George W. Lawrence and Edwin R. Hance reached the links quickly. A brief examination convinced them that Mrs. Gould was dead and that heart disease had been the cause.

Mrs. Gould appeared to be in excellent health when she walked to the links with her husband a few minutes before noon. She showed no traces of exhaustion and chatted with her husband as they progressed to the fifth hole. Evidently Mrs. Gould had overexerted herself and had made no mention of it to Mr. Gould.

Mr. and Mrs. Gould attended services this morning in All Saints' Memorial church and on return to Georgian Court dressed for the golf link. News of their mother's death was sent immediately to the seven children, five of whom were in New York. The other two, Lady Deices, formerly Helen Vivian Gould, is in London, and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, formerly Marjorie Gould, lives in Philadelphia. A cable message was sent to Lady Deices. Mrs. Drexel reached Georgian Court in the afternoon as did the other children, Mrs. Edith C. Wainwright, Miss Gloria Gould and Kingston, George and Jay, who were in New York.

Funeral arrangements were not completed tonight, but it was planned to take the body to Mr. Gould's Fifth Avenue home in New York tomorrow morning.

ADMIRAL KATO
SPEAKS HOPEFULLY

Washington, Nov. 13.—Secretary Hughes' pronouncement at the inaugural session of the armament conference "has clarified the situation," Admiral Baron Kato declared at a reception given tonight at the Shorham by Baron Shidehara, the Japanese ambassador. The reception was arranged to present journalists, who are reporting proceedings of the conference, to the Japanese plenipotentiaries and had been postponed until tonight on account of the assassination of Premier Hara. A number of distinguished Americans, not of the journalistic profession, also were present. Baron Shidehara introduced Admiral Kato and Prince Tokugawa and then called upon Frederick Roy Martin, general manager of The Associated Press, to respond as "the representative of American Journalism."

Admiral Kato pointed out that up to the present Japan has had fears which have caused her to continue the naval construction but, with fears on both sides obliterated, he was confident that an agreement so far as Japan and the United States were concerned could not fail to come.

Prince Tokugawa declared that if any feared the failure of the conference before leaving Japan, that fear had been dispelled since arriving in the United States.

Mr. Martin, responding, declared the press was "a powerful factor" in the conference since its function was "to tell the waiting world what you do here, who leads, who falters, and the results." The "regulars" of the fourth estate, Mr. Martin said who "measure their service not by the column but by the years," pledged the conference their best efforts so that they might profit by the deliberations here.

"Momentous as are the declarations you have made," Mr. Martin said, "the chief function of the press here, as throughout the conference, is to report them not to criticize, analyze, nor interpret them.

"Ours is a powerful factor in this conference—to tell the waiting world as accurately, comprehensively and impartially as possible what you do here, who leads, who falters, and the results. Whether the optimists who preach that hope will point the right way even if history fails or whether the pessimist are right who say that inevitable economic chaos confronts us, the part for the press is clearly defined, irrespective of the outcome.

"It must not stress possible disagreements, it must not question men's motives inequitably, it must not, for example, term armament 'preparation' in the case of one country and 'militarism' in the case of another, but as best it can, tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

"It may not be out of place to recall that in this democracy where most of our political leaders, whatever their present position, remain not long in public office; there is a continuing fourth estate of men who take their profession seriously. From time to time historians, essayists and philosophers may volunteer in our profession but it is the regulars—to adopt a military term—who measure their service not by the column but by the years, who will inform nine-tenths of all the world what is done here. They pledge you their best effort to rise to the highest possible level of honesty and fairness that the world may profit by your deliberations. Theirs not to reason why theirs but to strive with full knowledge of human liberty to let the world know exactly what goes on here at this critical hour."

Cornerstone of New
Victory Memorial

Washington, Nov. 14.—President Harding, General Pershing and Admiral Cootz, chief of naval operations, were among the speakers at the laying of the cornerstone of the new victory memorial here. HIGH RANKS FOR FOUR COUNTIES

By Hugh W. Roberts.

Washington, Nov. 13.—The richest agricultural county in the United States is Los Angeles, Calif. The value of its crops and live stock, per annum, is $71,579,899, according to the report today of the census bureau.

Of the 50 leading agricultural counties in the United States, 12 are in the South. But none of them are located in Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, Florida, Virginia or Arkansas. Of the ten, South Carolina has four, Texas four, Mississippi one and North Carolina three.

The 38 others are located in California (13), New York (7), Illinois (5), Pennsylvania (4), Washington (2), Wisconsin (2), Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Maine and Minnesota.

The 12 Southern counties included in the list of 50 rank as follows: Bolivar, Miss., Anderson, S. C., Orangeburg, S. C., Robeson, N. C., Williamson, Texas, Fitt, N. C., Spartanburg, S. C., Ellis, Texas, Fannin, Texas, Johnson, N. C., Marlboro, S. C., and Lamar, Texas.

These rich Southern counties depend chiefly on cotton and corn. North Carolina gets credit for tobacco and sweet potatoes, while Texas adds wheat, oats and forage. The richest county, Los Angeles, produces oranges, lemons, hay and forage and walnuts.

While the production of live stock figures prominently in the resources of counties West and North, it is not mentioned among Southern resources. This difference in assets gives advantage to others which exclude several Southern counties deserving "favorable mention."

The annual value of the products of the 12 Southern counties included in the 50 richest, follows:

Bolivar, Miss., $23,703,571; Anderson, S. C., $23,528,158; Orangeburg, S. C., $23,427,879; Robeson, N. C., $23,389,828; Williamson, Tex., $22,324,436; Pitt, N. C., $21,486,117; Spartanburg, S. C., $20,887,542; Ellis, Tex., $20,375,681; Fannin, Tex., $20,163,821; Johnson, N. C., $18,849,510; Marlboro, S. C., $19,419,921; Lamar, Tex., $19,305,636.
